INTRODUCTION.

In presenting this book to the public—which is done under the sanction and authority of the American Poultry Society—the publisher has in view solely the diffusion of such information as is imperatively needed by poultry dealers and amateurs throughout the continent. It contains information not only of value to breeders, but of the utmost importance in securing an impartial award at exhibitions and aiding the judges in their decisions. Trusting that it will meet with a favorable reception, and aid in reconciling the great diversity of opinion now existing,

I am,

Respectfully Yours,

A. M. HALSTED.

DESCRIPTION OF BREEDS.

BRAHMAS.

GENERAL SHAPE.

THE COCK.

Beak—Very strong, taper and well curved.
Comb—Pea, small, low in front and firm on the head without falling over to either side, distinctly divided so as to have the appearance of three small combs joined together in the lower part and back, the largest in the middle, each part slightly and evenly serrated.

Head—Small and slender.
Eye—Prominent and bright.
Deaf Ear—Large and pendant.

Wattles-Small, well rounded on the lower edge.

Necle—Long, neatly curved, slender near the head, the juncture very distinct, hackle full and abundant, flowing well on the shoulders.

Breast-Very full, broad and round;

carried well forward.

Back—Short, broad, flat betwixt the shoulders, saddle feathers very abundant.

Wings—Small; the primaries doubled well under the secondaries; the points covered by the saddle feathers.

Toil—Small; carried very upright, the higher feathers spreading out laterally.

Tail Coverts—Broad, very abundant, soft, and curved over the tail.

Thighs—Very large and strong; abundantly covered with very soft fluffy teathers, curving inward round the hock so as to hide the joint from view. Vulture hocks, that is, those with hard, stiff feathers projecting in a straight line beyond the joint, are objectionable, but not a disqualification.

Fluff—Very abundant and soft, covering the hind parts, and standing out about the thighs, giving the bird a very broad and deep appearance behind.

Legs—Rather strong and large; standing well apart, very abundantly feathered down the outside to the end of the toes

Toes—Straight and strong! the outer and middle toe being abundantly feathered.

Carriage—Very upright and strutting.

THE HEN.

Beak-Strong, curved and taper.

Comb—Pea, very small and low, placed in front of the head, and having the appearance of three very small serrated combs pressed together, the largest in the middle.

Head—Small and slender.
Eye—Prominent and bright.

Deaf Eur—Large and pendant.
Wattles—Small, rounded on the lower edore.

Neck - Rather short, neatly curved, slender near the head, the juncture very distinct, full and broad in the lower part; the feathers reaching well on to the shoulders.

Breast-Very deep, round, broad, and prominent.

Back—Broad and short; the feathers of the neck reaching to betwixt the shoulders, and abundance of soft, broad feathers rising to the tail.

Wings—Small; the bow covered by the breast feathers, the primaries doubled well under the secondaries, the points of the wings clipped well into the abundance of soft feathers and fluff.

Tail—Small; very upright, almost burried in the soft rump feathers.

Thinks—Strong and well covered with very soft leathers, curving round the hock so as to hide the joint from view. Vulture hocks are objectionable, but not a disqualification.

Fluff—Very abundant and soft, standing out about the hind parts and thighs, giving the bird a very broad and deep appearance behind.

Legs—Short, very strong, wide apart, abandantly feathered on the outside to the toes.

Toes—Straight and strong, the outer and middle toe being well feathered.

Carriage - Low in comparison to the cock.

BRONZE TURKEYS.

THE COCK.

Face, Ear Lobes, Wattles and Jaws.—Rich red, in adult birds the wattles are carunculated and sometimes edged with white.

Head-Long and broad,

Bill-Curved, strong and well set in the head, light horn color at tip, dark at base

Neck, Breast and Back—Black, beautifully shaded with bronze, which glistens like gold in the sunlight; each feather ending in a narrow glossy black band extending entirely across the feather.

Underpart of Body and Thighs—Black, similarly marked to the breast, but colors not so decided or rich.

Wing Bow-Black, with a brilliant greenish orange or bronze lustre.

Wing Primaries-Black, barred across with white or grey, the more even and regular the better, with a narrow edging of white on the outside web.

Wing Secondaries-Quills black, outside web grey, narrowly edged with white; inside web dark brown, mossed or shaded with grey. The whole of the flight feathers may be edged with white, but is rather objectionable.

Wing Coverts-Rich beautiful bronze, the feather terminating in a wide black band, the wing when folded having a broad bronze band across it, divided from the flight feathers by a glossy black ribbon like mark formed by the ends of the coverts.

Tail-Black, each feather pencilled irregularly, with narrow bands of brown,. and ending in a broad greyish bronze

Tail Coverts-Dull grey, where overlapped, shading into a brilliant metallic blue black, and ending in a wide brown band extending entirely across the end of the feather; the black part being crossed by two or more very narrow pencillings of brown, and a distinct narrow pencilling of glossy jet black between the blue and brown end. The more distinct the colors throughout the whole plumage the better.

Fluff--Abundant and soft, but well covered by hard body feathers.

Legs-Long and strong; flesh color.

THE HEN.

The entire plumage nearly similar to the cock, save that the colors are not so bright nor distinct, and the edging of the feathers is more frequently white than black. On the back the edging is very narrow between the wings, and increases in width toward the tail, being about three-eighths of an inch on the coverts.

On the breast the body of the feather is brown, ending with a narrow edging of white, divided from the brown by a narrow, glossy black band.
